Learning outcomes	The course aims to provide solid historical, theoretical, methodological and critical instruments to understand the main lines of theatre directing, evaluating the relationship between text and scene, the development of acting techniques, performance in tradition and avant-garde. Particular attention will be given to the open air theatre and the complex work required for the art of directing: considering some important cases of European directors in Italy, it will provide a broad framework of reflections on the re-use of spaces, the experimentation and the new perspectives offered by this practice. Finally, will be analysed the work of director Gianfranco De Bosio for the staging of Goldoni's comedy The Coffee House (Venice, Campo San Trovaso, 1993).
Course contents	Specialized Course: Open Air Theatre and the Art of Directing.

	Program: The course will analyze the main lines of theatre direction and its historical development, in order to consider theoretical and aesthetic issues, performing problems and literary implications. Particular attention will be devoted to the open air theatre and the scenic use of urban spaces, residences and natural environment: considering some emblematic cases (European directors in Turin, Florence, Venice, the Vittoriale), will be underlined the vitality of this practice in contemporary theatre with the staging of Goldoni's comedy The Coffee House realized by the director Gianfranco De Bosio (1993), set design by Emanuele Luzzati, and Giulio Bosetti in the intriguing role of Don Marzio.
